F O R E W A R D

Interstate grain trucking is an important segment of the transportation industry. Motor carriers typically transport over 150 million bushels of grain from North Dakota to various out-of-state destinations. In addition, as changes in the grain marketing infrastructure occur, motor carriers are becoming increasingly important with respect to intrastate grain and oil-seed movements.

This directory was published with two goals in mind. First, it serves as a list to shippers in identifying interstate grain haulers. And second, it publicizes firms that operate in the grain trucking industry. Unfortunately, not all firms operating in the industry were identified. Therefore, if you have any suggestions or know of anyone who would like to be included in the directory please contact the Upper Great Plains Transportation Institute. This directory will be updated on a periodic basis so any comments, additions, deletions or corrections would be greatly appreciated. This publication is for reference only and does not accredit or certify the performance of any firm.

Special thanks goes out to the trucking firms who took time to respond to our survey. Also, the North Dakota Grain Dealers Association was instrumental in getting this directory to print and in final distribution.
